Dreams Need Effort

Rafael loved football more than anything, but he was never the best player in the team. Every time the ball came to his feet, he got nervous, and his friends laughed. Still, he never gave up. Every morning, Rafael went to the school ground to practice. He ran laps, worked on his passing against the wall, and tried to get better every single day. His shoes wore out, his legs ached, but his dream stayed strong. Months passed, and the school announced the Inter-School Championship. Rafael was nervous but thrilled to be selected for the team. During the final match, the scores were tied and only one minute was left. Suddenly, the ball rolled toward him. He took a deep breath, remembered all those early mornings of practice and kicked with all his strength. GOAL! The crowd cheered as his teammates lifted him up in joy. At that moment, Rafael realized something important — talent may start the journey, but hard work finishes it.
