PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

It gives me great pleasure to share this message as we reflect on another fulfilling year at Loreto Convent School, Delhi Cantt. Our school remains a place where every child is encouraged to grow with confidence, compassion and purpose. Rooted in the vision of Venerable Mary Ward, we strive to nurture young minds guided by the values of freedom, justice, sincerity, verity and felicity.

This year offered many opportunities for our students to shine. Among the highlights were the Middle and Senior School Sports Day, 'Timeless Triumphs, Evolving Ever', which celebrated perseverance and teamwork, and the Junior School Concert, 'Beyond the Hills, Beneath the Blue', inspired by The Blue Umbrella, which beautifully showcased the creativity and confidence of our young learners.

As you explore this magazine, you will discover the many experiences, achievements and creative expressions that have made this year memorable. Each contribution reflects the enthusiasm and dedication of our students and teachers, who bring together the spirit of Loreto alive.

These achievements would not have been possible without the unwavering support and encouragement of our parents and well-wishers. Your trust, cooperation and active involvement continue to strengthen our efforts in nurturing confident and responsible young individuals. We deeply value this partnership and remain grateful for your constant encouragement.

I sincerely thank the editorial team of teachers and students whose dedication has made this publication possible. May this magazine bring you moments of joy and reflection as you journey through its pages.

God bless you all!

Mrs. Alice Rose D'Lima
Principal
LORETO CONVENT SCHOOL, DELHI CANTT.

SCHOOL MANAGER'S MESSAGE

The school year ends and as summer approaches we look to the fountains, waterfalls, lakes, streams and water coolers to refresh us and to quench our thirst. I am overcome by the metaphor of life-giving waters. Every drop of water counts and is cherished for the life and energy it brings. Being in Loreto Delhi is like being nourished by these waters.

Our Principal Mrs. Alice Rose D'Lima, the Coordinators, Staff, both teaching and non-teaching have been the life-giving waters for our students and parents. Their cheerfulness despite challenges in the changing environment is revitalising, be it bomb threats, board over-load and the like, which come unannounced each day.

I must place on record the roles our Supervisor and Support staff have played in keeping the campus well maintained for our students. They have always ensured that the school premises are safe and happy, and create a rejuvenating environment to aid holistic learning.

Parents, you have been wonderful nurturers and have given us your complete cooperation and support to make learning and 'dreaming big' a reality for your daughters.

Students, you have been the rush of refreshing energy and life as you walked in with joy and curiosity every morning, to learn, play and have a great time with teachers and friends. May the corridors continue to reverberate with your laughter.

The Divine energising source of our nourishment manifests as the life-giving water that flows in every action, activity and atom of our being these sacred premises.

I stand grateful to each benefactor and stakeholder for contributing so generously to make 2025-2026 a refreshing and scintillating one for all who walked through the portals of Loreto Convent School Delhi.

Blessings galore on each one of you and your families.

Sr. Igora Pinto
Manager
LORETO CONVENT SCHOOL, DELHI CANTT.

HEAD GIRL'S MESSAGE

Being able to call myself the Head Girl of Loreto Convent feels like a dream come true. This badge is not just a post or a badge, it is a reminder of the trust you have placed in me, and the responsibility I now carry with pride and purpose.

I would like to thank Sr. Igora, Mrs. D'Lima, sisters, and our dedicated teachers, not only for believing in me but also for guiding me every step of the way. I would also like to thank my friends and family for their love, patience and endless encouragement. I also thank the students for trusting me with this role. I promise to lead with courage, compassion, and a voice that speaks for each one of you.

Personally, I believe leadership is not about being the loudest voice but about lifting others up when they need it most. It is not about having all the answers, but about being willing to listen and learn. As Head Girl, I hope to lead not by command, but by example through respect, compassion, and quiet strength. I have learned that kindness does not make you weak, it makes you brave. And I truly believe that small acts, done with sincerity, can create the biggest change.

From the first day I walked into Loreto class Prep, with little feet and big dreams, this school has been my second home. I have looked up to every Head Girl before me, inspired by how they carried themselves.

Loreto has taught us values that go far beyond the classroom like sincerity, justice, truth, freedom, and service. These values are not just written on our walls, they live in our actions, in how we treat one another, and in how we rise after every fall.

As your Head Girl, I promise to lead not from the front, but alongside you. I will listen, learn, support, and stand up for what is right, for each one of you, and for the overall spirit of Loreto.

A HISTORICAL UNIFICATION

On November 4, 2025, the Institute of the Blessed Virgin Mary (IBVM/Loreto Sisters) and the Congregatio Jesu officially united as one congregation under the name Congregatio Jesu during a Mass in Loyola, Spain, led by Fr. Arturo Sosa SJ. Inspired by Venerable Mary Ward, both congregations shared a mission of empowering women through education, leadership, and service rooted in compassion and justice.

TWO PATHS, ONE DIRECTION

This marks an important step in the history of Catholic education and religion. Both congregations were inspired by Venerable Mary Ward, who believed in empowering women through education and strong moral values. The merger symbolizes unity, strength, and collaboration—two paths once apart yet sharing a single heart. The united congregation now carries forward the inspiring vision of Venerable Mary Ward, who believed that "Women in time to come will do much." Under one name, the sisters continue to achieve greater heights in faith, service, and education, especially for young girls like us. With around 1,800 sisters worldwide, the Congregatio Jesu remains committed to its foundress's mission, inspiring people everywhere to walk in goodness, courage, and trust in God.

AMISHA VERMA, IX B

What touches me most is that this merger is about unity, not power or expansion. In a world often divided, two congregations chose humility and courage, coming together to share leadership and strengthen their mission. It honours the past without erasing it, preserving the Loreto identity and traditions while building a stronger global future. More than a formal decision, this merger is a powerful statement of commitment to a centuries-old vision—proving that missions rooted in justice and courage continue to live on.

LIPIKA JOSHI, IX C

TWO JOURNEYS, WOVEN THROUGH TIME

Two journeys, woven through time,
Different voices, one sacred rhyme.
IBVM, with Mary's gaze,
CJ, with Ignatian ways.

Now they meet, not to erase,
But to deepen love, to share God's grace.
Heritage carried, faith renewed,
A single mission, strong and true.

Like rivers joining, wide and free,
They flow together into the sea.
Congregatio Jesu, born anew,
A union of hearts, faithful and true.

We, the children, watch and learn,
How unity makes the spirit burn.
In this merger, we clearly see,
God's call to love, in harmony.

AAHANA TRIPATHI, VIII A

A REMARKABLE MOMENT

From separate streams a river flows,
where trust and faith together grow.
IBVM and CJ forming strong,
to together be one for God.
When courage and verity together meet,
the world cheers after years.
CONGREGATIO JESU marks a moment precious and deep,
and shows what the world can truly be.

AVAVYA, VI A

The merger of IBVM and CJ marks an important milestone of unity and renewed purpose. Rooted in shared values and vision, it is more than an administrative step—it affirms collaboration and collective strength. By uniting resources, talents, and traditions, the congregations create greater opportunities and stronger global connections. While preserving their unique heritage, they enrich one another in harmony. This merger represents a future shaped by cooperation, innovation, and excellence, laying a stronger foundation for generations to come.

DEVANSHI WIG, IX B

ROOTED IN HERITAGE, UNITED IN HOPE

This united congregation looks ahead with renewed courage and joy. Their shared future is centered on excellence in education, commitment to justice, care for the vulnerability, and formation of young people as compassionate and responsible leaders. By joining together, they strengthen their ability to respond to the needs of today's world while remaining faithful to their rich heritage. This new chapters not just about structure, but about hope,a promise to continue shaping communities grounded in faith, wisdom, and service for generations to come.

SAMAIRA SINGH, XI B

This merger betokens the strengthening of the mission that Mary Ward envisioned, honouring her legacy with passion, along with verity, freedom, justice, sincerity, and felicity. These are the values we as Loreto students uphold and will continue to carry on in our lives. We are blessed to have been part of this wondrous moment, even if not directly. One thing stands as the truth nonetheless; the effects of this outcome will unite the Loreto family, and all the women of hope who bring light to those who are devoid of it.

NIKITA JOYCE LAKRA, X B

Four hundred years, one patient heart, what time once split now stands as part. Witnessing this union invites reflection on how a vision can outlive centuries. What began as courageous and, in its time, a misunderstood mission has now gently come to completion. The moment felt less like the creation of something new and more like a homecoming after centuries of separation. Now the sisters live and serve under a single name, CJ, reminding us that time does not weaken a genuine calling. Instead, it refines it, waits patiently, and eventually gathers people together. This unification becomes a reminder that dreams rooted in faith, though delayed, are not forgotten. They patiently find their moment to be realized.

GAURI VERMA, XI B

A VISION FULFILLED

Both branches have long been inspired by the vision of Mary Ward, a community of women dedicated to justice, education, and fearless discipleship. In a world in need of compassionate leadership rooted in faith and integrity, their union fulfils her dream of ‘one body’ and strengthens their shared global mission. It is a moment of reconciliation, healing, and renewed purpose. To mark this new beginning, the Mary Ward Symposium: ‘Women of the Dawn’ brought sisters together in prayer, reflection, and discernment. More than an administrative milestone, this unification is a spiritual homecoming, as one congregation steps forward in solidarity to continue Mary Ward’s mission with courage and joy.

CATHERINE SARAH SCARIA, XI C

This reunion is not about losing identity, but about rediscovering a shared one. Like branches that once grew in different directions yet remained connected to the same trunk, they now return visibly to the same root. It reminds us that strength does not come from separation, but from shared purposes. As students shaped by this legacy, we are invited not only to learn about unity, but to live in it, and in the way we respond to the world around us. If Mary Ward believed that women in time to come will do much, then perhaps that future is already here, waiting for us to carry it forward.

AISHANI RAWAT, IX C

Merging, apart from being a cultural and divine event, is also symbolically significant and an integral part in portraying the meaning and importance of bringing sustainability, and peace in the world, symbolizing harmony and co-operation. It also shows how both entities can ensure safety and faith in society. It is important that we see its true value and meaning. My mother always wanted me to study in Loreto, as she knew its value, and gradually I got to know about the deep history the school is encompassed with, and so I came to know about Venerable Mary Ward. I am truly grateful to have the privilege of getting to know about her, and how she became so important and a part of my life.

SHAMBHAVI BANNERJEE, IX C

प्रकृति हमारी सच्ची मित्र

प्रकृति हमारी प्यारी दोस्त,
जीवन देती हर एक रोज़।
सूरज चाचा उजियारा फैलाएँ,
चाँद सितारे जगमगाएँ।
पेड़ हमें छाया देते हैं,
फल-फूल से थाली भरते हैं।
नदियाँ बहती मीठा पानी,
धरती को करती हरी-भरी कहानी।
पक्षी गाते मधुर तराने,
फूल बिखेरें खुशबू सुहाने।
आओ मिलकर वादा करें,
धरती माँ को सदा बचाएँ।
पेड़ लगाएँ, जल बचाएँ,
प्रकृति का उपहार सजाएँ।
साफ हवा और निर्मल पानी,
यही है जीवन की असली निशान

ऑनलाइन पढ़ाई की कहानी

कभी ठंड कभी धुआँ है गहरा,
दिल्ली एनसीआर में मौसम का बड़ा है पहरा।
स्कूल जाना सपना-सा लगता हर बार,
कहती है मम्मी — "बेटा, क्लास ऑनलाइन है
पढ़ने के लिए हो जा तैयार।
कभी इंग्लिश , तो कभी हिंदी में,
ढूँढती रहती मैं शब्द-अर्थ।
और कभी मैथ्स और ईवीएस में पढ़ती हूँ,
एनवायरनमेंट और अर्थ।
ऑनलाइन का मन नहीं करता,
और हाइब्रिड में जी नहीं लगता।
स्क्रीन पर दोस्तों को देख मुस्काती हूँ,
कभी बात करती हूँ मैं, कभी उदास हो जाती हूँ।
ऑनलाइन में टीचर स्ट्रिक्ट,
और मम्मी के सामने खुल जाती है पोल।
पहले क्लासवर्क होता था,
अब होमवर्क हो जाता है गोल।
पूरे दिन डाँट पड़ती रहती है,
इसलिए तो स्कूल मुझे भेज दो —
यही माँ से बिनती रहती है।

सपनों की दुनिया

छोटे-छोटे मेरे सपने,
आसमान को छूना चाहें।
डर लगे तो भी ये दिल,
आगे बढ़ना ही सिखलाएँ।
कभी गिरूँ तो क्या हुआ,
फिर से उठना आता है।
मेहनत की सीढ़ी चढ़ते-चढ़ते,
मंज़िल पास ही आती है।
रात अँधेरी चाहे कितनी,
सुबह तो फिर भी आती है।
उम्मीदों की हल्की किरण,
नया हौंसला दे जाती है।
सपने ही तो ताकत हैं,
जो हमें आगे बढ़ाते हैं।
इन पर विश्वास जो रखे,
वो ही सच में जीत पाते हैं।

मेरी परछाई

पहले जानती थी तो बस इतना कि साथ चलती हैं मेरे
सूरत तो कभी देखी नहीं, पर बिलकुल मुझ-सी लगती हैं
कहते हैं लोग कि साया है, वो तेरा
अब क्या बताऊँ मैं कि एक वही तो है मेरा ||

मेरे साथ सोना, मेरे साथ जागना,
मेरे साथ हँसना और रोना है उसका
मेरी परछाई कभी साथ नहीं छोड़ती मेरा,
हाँ, अँधेरी रातों में भी मेरे साथ रहती है,
छुपके- चुपके मेरे साथ चलती है,

वक़्त बीता, मौसम बदले, लोग आये और गए
कभी कुछ मीठा, कभी कुछ कड़वा-सा ,
पर वो सदा एक-सी मेरे दिल के करीब रहती है।

देखती हूँ कभी चाँदनी रात में, कभी आईने में
कभी धूप में, कभी नदियों की धार में ,
मेरी ख़ुशी में खुश, मेरे गम में दुखी,
मेरी आत्मा में छुपी, संतुष्ट-सी रहती है।
न कभी कोई उम्मीद, न कभी कोई द्वेष,
ना शिकायत और ना ही दिखावा है,
मेरी परछाई, बिलकुल मुझ-सी दिखती है।

चाँदनी का समंदर

क्या खूब ताल मेल है प्रकृति का, दूर होकर भी संसार का संचालन
करती है पर क्या इंसान भी आपस में ऐसे ही जुड़े हैं?

ये समुद्र देखो,
महान शक्तिशाली
पर कोमल लहरों की सन-सन से दिल बहका लेता है
ये चाँद देखो,
धब्बों और गड्ढों से घिरा है
पर अपनी चाँदनी से किसी का भी अँधेरा मिटा देता है
अब चाहे हो समंदर या हो चाँद
दोनों की गैरमौजूदगी में संसार की कार्यशीलता पड़ेगी मंद , पर मेरे लिए आप चाँद हो और आपके लिए मैं समंदर
जितने पराक्रमी बाहर से, उतने ही नरम है अंदर!
आप स्वयं को समंदर और मुझे अपना चाँद कहो
मेरी चाँदनी के एहसास से सदा जगमगाते रहो,
समंदर में लहरें उभारने हेतु चाँद अपने प्राण भी वारे,
इसीलिए वो चंदा और बाकी सब सितारे,
थम जा, ठहर जा..
ओ, समंदर को चूमते हुए चाँद की उड़ान भरने वाला परिंदा,
सुन इक बार क्या कहता है ये चंदा,
जो ना मिले उसकी ही करते हो वासना,
क्यों इस रात की कोई सुबह नहीं, कैसी यह उपासना!

प्रतिबिंब

आनंद सुख में डूबे
सब हँसते और खेलते हैं
ख़ुशी के चेहरे के पीछे
सब कोई तो दुःख झेलते हैं
दूसरों के दुःख जानने पर भी
एक दूसरे को दूर ढकेलते हैं
दर्पण से उन्हीं को लगता है डर
उन्हीं को, जो स्वयं को जानते हैं
कि प्रतिबिंब में खड़ा है जो
उसके दिल में काँटे हैं
उसे अपने से इतना प्रेम है
कि वो दूसरों को दूर हटाते हैं
और उनके दूर होने पर, उन्हीं को फटकारते हैं
नादान कैसे जाने
कि दुःख होता है दूर
जब दूर होता है उनके
मन में बैठा यह असुर
जो कहता है ,"अपनी सुनों!
यह दुनिया ही है क्रूर ।।
क्योंकि जिस दिन सभी उभर जाए
उस अँधियारे से कभी
और दूसरों को समझाएँ
कि क्या है गलत और क्या सही
तब सुखी होंगे वे, जो झेलते हैं सब
और तभी सुख पाएँगे वे, जो क्रूर ना रहे अब ।

एक कविता – वसुधा के नाम

एक हवा का झोंका, एक चाँद से सुसज्जित आकाश,
झील में बहती नौका, सूर्य का प्रकाश,
नवजीवन की डोर, सफलता की ओर,
सभी को सिखाती है, वसुधा का स्मरण कराती है।
लहराते वृक्ष, बहती हवाएँ,
अपने ही अंदर कहानियाँ छिपाएँ।
बादलों की गड़गड़ाहट, पेड़ों पर बैठे कपोत की चहचहाहट,
हवा की निर्मल सनसनाहट।
एक गौरैया डिंब से निकलकर श्वास लेती,
वही गौरैया बड़ी होकर उड़ने का प्रयास करती,
उड़ती, गिरती, धरती माँ की गोद में आ पहुँचती।

एक मानव जन्म लेता,
अपनी जननी के प्रेम की छाँव में बड़ा हो जाता,
यथासंभव जीवन उपार्जन करता,
किन्तु मृत्यु के उपरांत धरती माँ की शरण में ही आ गिरता।
क्यों भाग रहे हो वसुधा से?
किस्मत का धागा टूट जाएगा,
समय का चक्र छूट जाएगा।
जो चिरंजीवी रहेगी,
वह है भूमि की ममता,
भूमि का वात्सल्य।
व्याकुल को शांत कराए,
शीतल झरने यूँ ही बहते जाएँ।
पानी में जीवों की विविधता
अचरज का पात्र बन जाती है,
पर कौन ही जाने, वसुधा कितना ही दे देती है।
गरजते बादल बरस जाएँगे,
नए इंद्रधनुष उत्पन्न हो जाएँगे।
कीचड़ के पोखर नन्हे बालकों की रुचि का सूत्र बन जाएँगे, सभी का मन बहलाएँगे।
बच्चे जब घास में भागेंगे,
वृद्धजन जीवन के लम्हे याद करेंगे।
मिट्टी से जब कपड़े गंदे हो जाएँगे,
जब हमारे बाल धूप में पक जाएँगे,
तब हम वास्तव में वसुधा का स्मरण कर पाएँगे।

MAKE IT GREEN

Lives are crying because it is not clean,
Earth is dying because it is not green.
Earth is our dear mother, don't pollute it;
She gives us food and shelter, so salute it.
With dying trees and animals, it's in sorrow;
Make it green, today and tomorrow.
With global warming, it's in danger;
Let's save it by becoming a strong ranger.
Trees are precious, preserve them;
Water is a treasure, reserve it.
Grow more trees, make Mother Earth green;
Reduce pollution and make her queen.

TIME

Time moves like a passing breeze,
Unfolding moments with a gentle ease.
Carrying days that quickly come and go,
Leaving behind the memories that we know.
Time teaches us things every day,
Guiding our steps in a quiet way.
Through the soft ticking of the clock's chime,
We learn to grow in the hands of time.
Moments held within the heart,
Memories play their own special part.
As years go by and the story is told,
It becomes a treasure more precious than gold.

HOPE

In halls that buzz, with future yet to be,
A silent star called 'Hope' lights you and me.
Hope gives us strength and power;
We all have hope in our daily lives.
Hope is the best; it always guides us.
If you lose hope, it will lose you.
Hope is a quality that everyone needs.
If you don't have hope, you will not succeed.
I hear hope hum inside the classroom,
As I say, 'Hope is the best.'

SOFT WINTER MAGIC

Winter is when even blankets feel cold,
Winter is back again, and the fan switches get old.
ACs are off, ice creams are gone;
It's time to step out and get a new shawl on.
Sitting in the sunshine, sipping hot tea,
Dressed in sweaters, warm and cozy.
Dew drops like tiny stars on leaves,
Soft winter magic fills the air, wrapped in its quiet gifts,
And all the world with wonder lifts.

UNSUNG HEROES

Who are they?
They are humans —
but are they a thousand miles away?
No, they are women
who work relentlessly,
bear everything without complaint
and still look beautiful and lovely!
They do not live far away;
we see them every day!
Oh, wait — do we?
And are they women?
I can't believe this!
Is it true?
Is it hard to believe, since girls
"can't do anything" That's such a lie!
Don't state something as a fact and then deny it!
Alright then,
who are these unsung heroes now?
Tell me fast — you are leaving me aghast!
Very well,
they are the women who know how to cook,
live life, and always make us study,
handing us a book!
They are the heroes who never receive praise.
I say, and raise a toast,
"Cheers to the best mother!"
And that is not a boast!

UNITED IN SPIRIT

From all the chariots whizzing past,
Our determination stays steadfast.
Arrows soar and horses trot,
An ancient play the masters taught.
Barriers people tried to break,
Yet all their efforts were in vain.
Violent bloodshed, broken hearts,
Lives torn apart and set in parts.
People's plight — their voices cried,
Fighting against odds, finally unified.
With hearts of fire and burning zeal,
They paved the way with minds of steel.
Tenacious in the fields, the courts,
And even behind closed doors.
Women joined the field as one;
A new era had just begun.
Global icons bring us pride,
Social barriers they redefined.
Nations united, going the distance,
Achieving greatness through persistence.
Beyond victory, they value spirit and friendship,
Doing what is right — true sportsmanship.
Helping hands carve paths of fair play;
They gather smiles and brighten days.
The sports we all know today —
All boundaries fade away.
Connecting hearts, from screens to grounds,
In every game, our unity resounds.
The flaming torch is passed down,
Spirited youth now wear the crown.
Timeless triumphs, shining bright,
Racing together, hearts alight.
Ever evolving, we break our chains,
Loreto's pride courses through our veins.
We, Loretoites, with all our dreams,
As one team, our future gleams.

THE PILOT'S PUZZLE

And then, the plane crashed.
No, it wasn't the pilot's fault.
She practised hard,
but she crashed —
and it cost her everything.
She swore she would not give up.
She found a reason to work hard,
didn't she?
But at last,
the puzzle fell apart
before she could place the final piece.
A tragic story, isn't it?
To the world, yes.
They saw that she was sad
because the plane had crashed.
But to her,
that meant everything.
It had cost her everything.
Yet at last,
she found the missing puzzle piece.
It wasn't easy.
It asked for something in return.
So, she gave it.
And at last, the puzzle was complete.

POUR OF THE CLOUDS

Happens for a while, comes and goes,
Leaves the water that flows and flows.
Makes the weather clean and cold,
Like the clouds that scatter gold.
A beautiful scent rises from the soil,
Green grass lies perfectly coiled.
Mountains and fields all turn green,
Like a splendid sunset scene.
When it rains, black clouds roll over,
Dark and dusty as they hover.
Happens for a while, comes and goes,
Leaves the water that flows and flows.

HOLDING IT ALL

Sometimes, I wonder about glue.
No one ever stops to ask how it's holding up —
if it's tired of sticking things together, or worried about falling apart,
or wondering how it will pay its bills next week.
She's rather like that.
She's like glue.
She works behind the scenes to keep everything together.
And I've never stopped to think about what her story might be — why she hides behind the jokes,
behind her laughter,
and all the little things that make her seem alright.

WHY DOES MONA LISA NOT SMILE?

Asked why Mona Lisa wasn't smiling.
"I just... have certain bearings," said Mona Lisa — though lying.
The Scream looked at the calendar and clapped his hands to his face.
The other paintings turned not blue, but lavender!
And Sunflowers looked shamefully down at his vase.
It was Mona Lisa's birthday —
and they had all forgotten.
She wore her sad look all day
even thinking them 'rotten'.
They planned a wild surprise affair —
but where would it take place?
The Scream yelled, "Anywhere but there — not near that smiling face!"
So, they held a grand celebration
and made Mona Lisa smile,
wiping away her indignation
and she no longer thought them vile!

THE LOST STUFFED BEAR

A long time ago, a little girl named Amy lived with her mother in the beautiful mountains of Switzerland. She was joyful, cheerful, and loved to explore the world around her.

Christmas had come. Amy climbed down from her bed and was surprised to see a gift with her name placed under the Christmas tree. She clapped her hands in delight and ran towards it. When she opened the gift, she was overjoyed. Inside was a little stuffed teddy bear. She loved it so much that she carried it with her everywhere she went.

One day, her mother asked her to fetch some milk and bread from the convenience store. Her mother handed her a jute bag, and off she went. The path to the store passed through a narrow snowy trail lined with tall pine trees. Amy happily walked along, humming a Christmas tune and holding her teddy bear close to her.

She bought the milk and bread and quickly made her way back home. However, when she reached home and began taking things out of her bag, the teddy bear was nowhere to be found. Amy's cheerful face suddenly turned worried. She searched the whole house, but with no luck.

Feeling upset, she called her best friend Olivia to help her look for the teddy bear. When Olivia arrived, the two girls began searching carefully. They checked the snowy path, looked around the pine trees, and even asked the shopkeeper, but they still could not find it.

After nearly an hour, the girls sat down to rest. Amy tried to remember every step she had taken that day. Suddenly she jumped up and exclaimed, "Wait, I know where it is! I must have dropped it at the convenience store when I was putting the milk into my bag!"

The two girls quickly ran towards the convenience store. As they reached the door, Amy looked down and her eyes sparkled with joy. There, near the counter, lay her little teddy bear. The kind shopkeeper had kept it safely, hoping someone would come looking for it.

Amy hugged the teddy bear tightly and thanked the shopkeeper with a big smile. The two friends then walked back home happily along the snowy path. From that day on, Amy took extra care of her teddy bear, remembering that the things we love the most are the ones we must cherish the most.

CARING HEARTS, STRONG BONDS

Sometimes I wonder, if there were no conflicts, no fights, and no differences, wouldn't it be a world of sheer joy, happiness, and fulfilment? Is it unrealistic to dream of a place where people live in unity, oneness and freedom?

My heart gives a cry whenever I see an impoverished child, abandoned on the road, spreading little hands for a coin or two. Hunger gleams in his eyes, and he yearns for a little care and compassion. God can't be unkind! It is, human beings who have unleashed a wave of 'SELF'. We have become insensitive and indifferent to others' plight in the fast pace of life. Where is the life we have lost in living?

When we learn to give to others, we receive happiness and contentment in return. Like ripples on the water, every gift returns to the giver. With love and warmth, we forge new bonds and discover newer friendships. You never feel a vacuum within, even in adverse situations, as you easily find someone to lean on.

Justice is the thread that holds society together. If we do not rob others of their rightful things, there wouldn't be any injustice. Tell yourself, no one is small or unworthy; everyone matters. We are born equal to flourish and thrive, and to fulfil our deepest desires and dreams.

Just think of the abundance of peace and love we shall experience if we cleanse our inner selves, our 'true selves'.

NATURE

Have you ever seen the beauty of nature?
The shining night, the huge moon that appears in the sky,
Accompanied by the kinder stars.
Thunder blunders at a height,
Surrounding the sun with a fright.

Flowers blooming, polite and bright,
Birds flying across the sky.
Awkward clouds, all funny and white
But wait, now they are grey.
I guess it will be raining today.

Now it's full of puddles, oh hooray!
Away goes the shower mood; look at the sky, it's all blue.
Oh, what a lovely sight, wonder and light.
All this I was watching from my balcony;
It seems like the perfect harmony.

THE GOD OF LITERATURE: RABINDRANATH TAGORE

Who is the god of literature? Who is the one who pursued his goals and lived without petty resentment towards anyone? He is none other than Rabindranath Tagore. He is the epitome of literature, art and culture. He was a man who understood the depth and importance of art and culture. He left an indelible mark on the world and still resides in our hearts — and always will. On 7 May, we celebrated his 164th birth anniversary on Pochishe Baisakh, which means the 25th day of Baisakh, welcoming the summer season.

Rabindranath Tagore (7 May 1861 – 7 August 1941), born in Jorasanko Thakurbari, Kolkata, was far more than a literary figure; he was a philosopher, educator and humanist. He believed that education should not be mechanical or forced, but rooted in self-realisation, wisdom and inner awakening. For Tagore, true learning was not about impressing others, but about gaining knowledge that nurtures humility, self-control and emotional balance.

He strongly opposed war and violence, advocating peace, forgiveness and a transformation of mindset. He believed that resentment and revenge lead only to destruction, whereas love, unity and mutual respect create harmony. Tagore emphasised that real strength lies in peace, and that joy comes not from vengeance but from letting go of negativity.

He said, "The pen is mightier than the sword." He consistently condemned wars and conflicts, considering them petty and destructive. "Resentment is never the solution," he believed; rather, a change in mindset is the key.

This reflection not only honours his ideals but also highlights the urgent need for peace in today's world. Amid growing violence and environmental degradation, it calls especially upon the youth to stand against discrimination, uphold equality and democratic values, and promote unity beyond differences.

THE CEREBRAL COMPANION

As the days grow shorter, he seems to shrink.
I drained a glass of cold drink; he told me, "I am forgetting everything."
I checked the time — it was 7:30 — but he said to me, "You only know sine 30°."
I packed my bag and zipped up the chain; he popped up and said, "You have left your pen!"
On my way to school, I shoved him into my briefcase, as he was disturbing me at every phase.
I saw the question paper on my bench and was suddenly drenched in sweat.
The teacher asked me, "Why are you fretting?"
I told her, "I left him."
"Who 'him'?"
"My brain, Miss — dim."

MIST, MUTTON AND MEMORY

I never thought myself a mountain person. My only pleasant hill-station memory was of bustling Nainital — lively and city-like. That changed when I visited Ranikhet.

A quiet retreat near Almora, Ranikhet lies about nine hours from Delhi, with the final stretch winding through demanding mountain roads. Perhaps this very inaccessibility keeps it less crowded and preserves its serenity.

The town is home to the historic Kumaon Regimental Centre. The Kumaonis, long known for their martial strength, were formally inducted into military service in the early 20th century. A battalion raised here in 1917 during World War I eventually evolved into what is today the 3rd Battalion of the Kumaon Regiment in the Indian Army.

The KRC has one of the most beautiful cantonments I have ever seen. Its lush greenery, serene views, and European-style architecture, coupled with the quaint charm of the Kumaon hills, make it a perfect retreat. My fondest memory is of my father cooking mutton near a forest clearing, our family gathered on logs, sharing food and laughter. The setting was simple, even inconvenient, but the warmth of the moment made it unforgettable.

The misty mornings are magical. Long walks through quiet paths, accompanied by birds, langurs, monkeys, and mountain dogs, make me feel deeply connected to nature. In those moments, I sense how small we are within the vastness of the Earth. The peace here awakens something reflective and artistic within me.

Returning to Ranikhet each year feels less like a vacation and more like coming home.

WHO AM I?

1. I move without legs. I speak without a voice. Everyone follows me—But no one can stop me. Who am I?
2. I sit in every room, yet I never open a door. I show up every morning—But leave by afternoon. Who am I?
3. I keep secrets. I keep facts. Open me once—And your whole world expands. Who am I?
4. You can't see me, but you see what I do. I shape clouds, waves, and leaves. Who am I?

THE FORGOTTEN TREE

Once upon a time, in a village, there stood a tree tucked into a corner, hidden away from disbelieving eyes.

The tree had brown bark like old stories and stood upon emerald grass like a magic spell. Birds sang from its branches as three children played beneath it, imagining fairies and hiding from the unknown future. Their laughter blended with birdsong, filling the place with pure joy.

If you had known better, you might have thought the tree truly enchanted. And yet, even in fairy tales, enchantments last only so long. The children's parents eventually came to take them away — away to the real world, where enchantments did not happen without being paid for in advance.

All three left the village at the same time. Two went to big cities, while one was taken overseas to a bleak new beginning. Though unwilling at first, they resolved to accept it. Childhood dreams faded into harsh realities and a future that felt fixed and inevitable.

Above them, like a spectre, a checklist began to appear. The page was not brown like a well-loved story; it was stark white with black print — the colour of lists and bills and things that seemed to shout, hurry up.

It read, 'The Checklist to Being Happy'. It was different for each of them, yet in every version it proposed a series of tasks with a box beside each one — a box to tick.

There were things written such as "Get good grades", "Become Sports Captain", "Get into a good university", "Get married", "Have children", and many more. All the adults carried one above them, yet not even one had finished it. No wonder everyone rushed through the streets with grim expressions. They were not happy yet.

And so began their next magical quest: to tick every box in order to be happy. One of them picked up a football. It felt right, he thought. The other two devoted themselves to books and studies — no less adrenaline-inducing than the thrill of a match.

One of them adopted a dream — a dream of a high salary and stability. A train track of a job, the colour of steel and rust. Another had a dream thrust upon her, choking the young artist within. The dream was now hers, and yet it never truly would be.

The Checklist burned above their heads, reminding them of the tree. They had been happy there as children, but as adults, they believed only completing the checklist would grant them that feeling again.

All three gained admission to good universities and moved away. Another box ticked — only so many more to go. They made friends. They fell in love — love red as a beautiful nightmare, a feeling like free fall, except knowing the landing would not be hard. They married. Another box ticked.

They had children and ticked life's expected boxes, feeling satisfied but not truly happy. As more milestones appeared, exhaustion grew. In different places, they longed for the lost "tree". Though it seemed distant, they could still see it clearly in their memories.

And that tree — that feeling of happiness, that orange shade of joy — was never on the checklist. It lived in the little things: in the proud eyes of a parent, in the laughter of a friend, in the smile of a spouse. It was in the messy, beautiful drawing of a child. The orange shade was there, tinged with blue sadness, in watching the child grow and move on. The tree had never left them. It had been there in their hearts all along. They had been looking outside and had forgotten that the tree and its magic would follow them wherever they went.

And as they closed their eyes, a dark shadow — the colour of peace and night — came to take them away. He led them back to the tree, to the place where they had once played with fairies and hidden from monsters. He watched as their lives flashed before their eyes — lives spent in a race, believing the finish line was happiness, when in truth, it was him. It was always him.

He took them there and wondered how long it took humans to realise that happiness was never the finish line. It was the beginning. Such tiresome creatures they were. And yet, marvelled Death, there were always moments when they made him smile.

UNSAID: IT'S OKAY TO ASK FOR HELP

At seventeen, she experiences constant mental fatigue. In class, she feels the weight of everyone's gaze, and whispered conversations seem like judgements. Even when she knows the answer, fear freezes her. When called upon, her voice shakes and her body trembles. At home, the moment replays itself in her mind. She is unable to quiet her thoughts.

One late night, she watches a mental health video that introduces her to 'anxiety' and 'depression'. An online quiz appears to confirm her symptoms, giving her a strange sense of clarity. However, when she reaches out to a friend, he responds casually, "Same, bro — life's depressing." Her parents are equally dismissive, blaming her struggles on a generation that overanalyses everything.

Feeling smaller and more invisible than ever, she sinks into a haze of self-criticism and isolation. Her inner voice grows so loud and intrusive that she eventually reaches a breaking point, sitting alone with an overwhelming urge to escape her pain. Her older brother walks in and finds her at rock bottom. Instead of panicking or lecturing, he sits quietly beside her. When she finally opens up about her fear and pressure, he listens without interrupting. He shares a simple yet life-changing truth: "You can ask for help, and there is nothing wrong with that."

Understanding her fear of telling their parents, he discreetly takes her to a trusted therapist. The process is frightening and uncomfortable, but it helps her step out of isolation. Recovery does not happen overnight, and she still has difficult days, but the burden is no longer hers alone to carry. Knowing that someone truly stands beside her is enough comfort to help her keep moving forward.

DREAMS BURIED BENEATH TIMETABLES

When a dream first takes shape, it becomes a core part of a student's self-concept. It is driven by emotion, curiosity and a sense of identity. Ambition feels personal, not imposed. However, as students move deeper into structured academic systems, the pressure to conform gradually replaces exploration. Timetables, assessments and rankings begin to define worth, shaping behaviour through institutional conditioning rather than individual purpose.

Over time, internalised discipline takes root. Students learn to suppress instinctive curiosity in favour of efficiency and obedience. What appears to be resilience is often compliance in disguise, where survival within the system matters more than emotional autonomy. The focus shifts from growth to performative perfection, encouraging students to meet expectations rather than question them. This creates psychological rigidity, making it difficult to think beyond predefined paths.

As pressure builds, cognitive dissonance emerges. Students continue working relentlessly yet feel disconnected from the very dreams they once cherished. This emotional detachment leads to identity erosion, where ambition remains but meaning fades. The result is an authenticity crisis, marked by exhaustion, confusion and a quiet sense of existential fatigue. Dreams are not lost suddenly; they are buried beneath routines that reward submission over reflection.

Yet within this controlled chaos lies the possibility of introspective rebellion. Choosing mental stillness over silent submission creates space for reflection, where ambition can be reclaimed without fear. True progress lies in resisting subconscious conformity and reconnecting with purpose. Education should cultivate thought, not suppress individuality. When students are allowed to realign effort with meaning, dreams rise again — not as obligations, but as authentic directions forward.

Preventing students from turning into dream-achieving robots begins with restoring emotional autonomy within education. Schools must create space for reflection, creativity and choice, not merely output and obedience. When learning values curiosity over conformity, resilience over compliance, and meaning over performative perfection, students retain a connection to their self-concept instead of operating on autopilot. Encouraging dialogue, self-expression and pauses for mental stillness helps students resist subconscious conformity and psychological rigidity. Education should develop thinkers, not efficient machines. The question we must ask ourselves is this: are we preparing students to succeed on paper, or to recognise themselves when they finally reach the future for which they were trained?

"I'LL STUDY TOMORROW": THE BIGGEST LIE!

“I’ll study tomorrow” is a sentence every student has said at least once — and deep down, we know it is rarely true. It sounds harmless, even hopeful, but it quietly turns productive evenings into endless scrolling and stressful mornings.

Tomorrow feels magical, full of motivation, time and focus. Yet when it arrives, it looks exactly like today — only with more panic and less time. Books remain closed, the syllabus grows more intimidating, and guilt sets in.

This habit often begins with good intentions: just five minutes on the phone, one more episode to relax. But five minutes become fifty and tomorrow becomes the next promise once again. It is not always laziness; often, it is fear — fear of failure or of not being good enough.

Studying today may not make us toppers overnight, but it saves us from last-minute stress and self-doubt. The truth is simple: small efforts today matter more than perfect plans for tomorrow. Tomorrow only works when today does.

JOIN THE PUZZLE GAME

1. You enter a house with two rooms. One room is full of money, the other full of knowledge. You open only one door first, no matter what. Which door do you open first?

Answer: The door you entered the house through.

2. You see a boat full of people. But when it comes closer, there’s not a single person on it.

How is that possible?

Answer: All of them are married, so no ‘single’ person.

TRUE EDUCATION

The question of whether educating the mind without educating the heart constitutes true education remains debatable. Certain fields, particularly science and technology, demand strong intellectual and practical skills rather than emotional involvement. In such areas, education often prioritises critical thinking and technical competence over emotional development.

People can acquire values and ethics through various means outside formal education, such as family, culture and personal experiences. Therefore, formal education does not have to bear the sole responsibility of shaping one's character.

Moreover, character is not shaped by formal education alone. Values and ethics are also learned through family, culture and lived experiences. As Martin Luther King Jr. stated, the purpose of education is to teach one to think intensively and critically. A well-trained mind enables wise and rational decision-making, whereas emotions can sometimes mislead.

Although Aristotle emphasised that educating the heart gives meaning to life and nurtures human qualities, being practical and intellectually focused does not make someone less human. Is it fair, then, to dismiss intellectually driven education as incomplete?

In conclusion, while both aspects are important, the mind must be educated effectively and decisively to help individuals grow into confident and responsible human beings.
