EDITOR'S MESSAGE

We have just celebrated the solemn feast of Easter — a powerful reminder of the triumph of life over death. May the Risen Lord continue to accompany each of us with His blessings of love, peace, and joy.

It gives us great joy to present to you the Easter issue of The Messenger. The theme highlighted in this edition is The Synodal Journey, a reflection on the path the Archdiocese of Nagpur has undertaken in preparation for the Jubilee Year of Hope.

This issue of our Archdiocesan bulletin carries a detailed report on the activities of the Christian Life Community (CLC) and various Archdiocesan Commissions. These commissions have organized several meaningful programs at the parish, deanery, and archdiocesan levels, fostering a spirit of communion and mission.

Additionally, we have included comprehensive reports of the initiatives and activities carried out by our parishes and educational institutions. As we await the results of the various board examinations, we place our trust in the hard work and dedication of our students, confident that they will make us proud and reflect the collaborative efforts of all stakeholders.

To those among you heading off for your well-deserved home holidays, may this be a time of rest, renewal, and joyful reunion. May you return refreshed and reinvigorated in spirit to continue your apostolic work with renewed zeal.

We invite you to take some time to flip through the pages of this bulletin and stay connected with the life and mission of our Archdiocese.

Wishing you every Easter blessing,

Easter – A Call to Journey together as Synodal Church

His Holiness Pope Francis has proclaimed 2025 as the Jubilee Year, with the inspiring theme: “Pilgrims of Hope.” We marked the beginning of this sacred year with the blessing of the Jubilee Cross, which is now on pilgrimage to various parishes across the Archdiocese. This Cross remains in each parish for a week, offering the faithful an opportunity for adoration, worship, and veneration.

During this Lenten season, the blessed Jubilee Crosses were sent to the parishes and brought into the homes of families, serving as a powerful symbol of hope, redemption, and transformation. In his Lenten message for 2025, Pope Francis invites us to reflect deeply on the meaning of journeying together in hope—a call to conversion, addressed to each of us personally and to the Church as a community.

The Holy Father outlines three key reflections:

- To Journey – The Jubilee motto, Pilgrims of Hope, begins with the first call to personal conversion through honest self-examination.
- To Journey Together – The Church is invited to walk in synodality, emphasizing unity and shared mission. This is a second call to conversion—toward communal discernment and deeper participation, a summons to synodality.
- To Journey Together in Hope – We hold fast to the promise of God's enduring love. As St. Paul writes, “Hope does not disappoint” (Romans 5:5). This hope is central to our Jubilee journey and guides us toward the joy of Easter. This, then, is a third call to conversion: a call to hope, to trust in God and his great promise of eternal life.

My dear people, together we have walked the Lenten path of this Pilgrimage of Hope. Pope Francis reminds us that the Cross is “the greatest sign of love,” showing how Jesus' suffering, death, and resurrection transforms pain into promise and despair into hope. A call by Jubilee for tireless cultivators of the seeds of the Gospel. May those seeds transform from within both humanity and the whole cosmos in the sure expectation of a new heaven and a new earth.

As we enter the Easter season, may each of us experience the joy, peace, and renewed life that the Risen Lord offers. In this Jubilee Year of Hope, as we implement our Archdiocesan Pastoral Plan, let us commit to listening, discerning, and journeying together as true pilgrims of hope.

May the Blessed Virgin Mary, Mother of Hope, intercede for our families, communities, parishes, and the entire Archdiocese of Nagpur. May she accompany us on this sacred journey of grace.

Wishing you a joyful and blessed Easter.
May the peace of the Risen Lord fill your hearts.

MESSAGE OF HIS HOLINESS POPE FRANCIS FOR LENT 2025

Let us journey together in hope

Dear brothers and sisters, We begin our annual pilgrimage of Lent in faith and hope with the penitential rite of the imposition of ashes. The Church, our mother and teacher, Invites us to open our hearts to God's grace, so that we can celebrate with great joy the paschal victory of Christ the Lord over sin and death, which led Saint Paul to exclaim: "Death has been swallowed up in victory. Where, O death, is your victory? Where, O death, is your sting?" (1 Cor 15:54-55). Indeed, Jesus Christ, crucified and risen, is the heart of our faith and the pledge of our hope in the Father's great promise, already fulfilled in His beloved Son: life eternal (cf. Jn 10:28, 17:3).

This Lent, as we share in the grace of the Jubilee Year, I would like to propose a few reflections on what it means to journey together in hope, and on the summons to conversion that God in His mercy addresses to all of us, as individuals and as a community

First of all, to journey. The Jubilee motto, "Pilgrims of Hope", evokes the lengthy journey of the people of Israel to the Promised Land, as recounted in the Book of Exodus. This arduous path from slavery to freedom was willed and guided by the Lord, who loves His people and remains ever faithful to them. It is hard to think of the biblical exodus without also thinking of those of our brothers and sisters who, in our own day, are fleeing situations of misery and violence in search of a better life for themselves and their loved ones. A first call to conversion thus comes from the realisation that all of us are pilgrims in this life; each of us is invited to stop and ask how our lives reflect this fact. Am I really on a journey, or am I standing still, not moving, either immobilised by fear and hopelessness, or reluctant to move out of my comfort zone? Am I seeking ways to leave behind the occasions of sin and situations that degrade my dignity? It would be a good Lenten exercise for us to compare our daily life with that of some migrant or foreigner, to learn how to sympathise with their experiences, and in this way, discover what God is asking of us so that we can better advance on our journey to the house of the Father. This would be a good "examination of conscience" for all of us wayfarers.

Second, to journey together. The Church is called to walk together, to be synodal. Christians are called to walk at the side of others; and never as lone travellers. The Holy Spirit impels us not to remain self-absorbed, but to leave ourselves behind and keep walking towards God and our brothers and sister; Journeying together means consolidating the unity grounded in our common dignity as children of God (cf. Gal 3:26-28). It means walking side by side, without shoving or stepping on others, without envy or hypocrisy, without letting anyone be left behind or excluded. Let us all walk in the same direction, tending towards the same goal, attentive to one another in love and patience.

This Lent, God is asking us to examine whether in our lives, in our families, in the places where we work and spend our time, we are capable of walking together with others, listening to them, resisting the temptation to become self-absorbed and to think only of our own needs. Let us ask ourselves in the presence of the Lord whether, as bishops, priests, consecrated persons and laity in the service of the Kingdom of God, we cooperate with others. Whether we show ourselves welcoming, with concrete gestures, to those both near and far. Whether we make others feel a part of the community or keep them at a distance. This, then, is a second call to conversion: a summons to synodality.

Third, let us journey together in hope, for we have been given a promise. May the hope that does not disappoint It would be a good Lenten exercise for us to compare our daily life with that of some migrant or foreigner, to learn how to sympathise with their experiences, and in this way, discover what God is asking of us so that we can better advance on our journey to the house of the Father. (cf. Rom 5.5), the central message of the Jubilee, be the focus of our Lenten journey towards the victory of Easter. As Pope Benedict XVI taught us in the Encyclical Spe Salvi, "the human being needs unconditional love. He needs the certainty which makes him say: "neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord' (Rom 8.38-39)". Christ, my hope, has risen! He lives and reigns in glory Death has been transformed into triumph, and the faith and great hope of Christians rests in this: the resurrection of Christ!

This, then, is the third call to conversion: a call to hope, to trust in God and His great promise of eternal life. Let us ask ourselves: Am I convinced that the Lord forgives my sins? Or do I act as if I can save myself? Do I long for salvation and call upon God's help to attain it? Do I concretely experience the hope that enables me to interpret the events of history and inspires in me a commitment to justice and fraternity, to care for our common home and in such a way that no one feels excluded?

Sisters and brothers, thanks to God's love in Jesus Christ, we are sustained in the hope that does not disappoint (cf. Rom 5:5). Hope is the "sure and steadfast anchor of the soul". It moves the Church to pray for "everyone to be saved" (1 Tim 2.4) and to look forward to her being united with Christ, her bridegroom, in the glory of heaven. This was the prayer of Saint Teresa of Avila: "Hope, O my soul, hope You know neither the day nor the hour Watch carefully, for everything passes quickly, even though your impatience makes doubtful what is certain, and turns a very short time into a long one" (The Exclamations of the Soul to God, 15:31) May the Virgin Mary, Mother of Hope, intercede for us and accompany us on our Lenten journey.

MESSAGE OF HIS HOLINESS POPE FRANCIS

For The 59th World Day of Social Communications

Share with gentleness the hope that is in your hearts

(cf. 1 Pet 3:15-16)

Dear brothers and sisters!

In these our times, characterized by disinformation and polarization, as a few centres of power control an unprecedented mass of data and information, I would like to speak to you as one who is well aware of the importance – now more than ever – of your work as journalists and communicators. Your courageous efforts to put personal and collective responsibility towards others at the heart of communication are indeed necessary.

As I reflect on the Jubilee we are celebrating this year as a moment of grace in these troubled times, I would like in this Message to invite you to be “communicators of hope”, starting from a renewal of your work and mission in the spirit of the Gospel.

Disarming communication

Too often today, communication generates not hope, but fear and despair, prejudice and resentment, fanaticism and even hatred. All too often it simplifies reality in order to provoke instinctive reactions; it uses words like a razor; it even uses false or artfully distorted information to send messages designed to agitate, provoke or hurt. On several occasions, I have spoken of our need to “disarm” communication and to purify it of aggressiveness. It never helps to reduce reality to slogans. All of us see how – from television talk shows to verbal attacks on social media – there is a risk that the paradigm of competition, opposition, the will to dominate and possess, and the manipulation of public opinion will prevail.

There is also another troubling phenomenon: what we might call the “programmed dispersion of attention” through digital systems that, by profiling us according to the logic of the market, modify our perception of reality. As a result, we witness, often helplessly, a sort of atomization of interests that ends up undermining the foundations of our existence as community, our ability to join in the pursuit of the common good, to listen to one another and to understand each other’s point of view.

Identifying an “enemy” to lash out against thus appears indispensable as a way of asserting ourselves. Yet when others become our “enemies”, when we disregard their individuality and dignity in order to mock and deride them, we also lose the possibility of generating hope. As Don Tonino Bello observed, all conflicts “start when individual faces melt away and disappear”. [1] We must not surrender to this mindset.

Hope, in fact, is not something easy. Georges Bernanos once said that, “only those are capable of hope, who have had the courage to despair of the illusions and lies in which they once found security and which they falsely mistook for hope... Hope is a risk that must be taken. It is the risk of risks”. [2] Hope is a hidden virtue, tenacious and patient. For Christians, it is not an option but a necessary condition. As Pope Benedict XVI noted in the Encyclical Spe Salvi, hope is not passive optimism but, on the contrary, a “performative” virtue capable of changing our lives: “The one who has hope lives differently; the one who hopes has been granted the gift of a new life’ (No. 2).

Accounting with gentleness for the hope that is in us

In the First Letter of Peter (3:15-16), we find an admirable synthesis in which hope is linked to Christian witness and communication: “In your hearts sanctify Christ as Lord. Always be ready to make your defense to anyone who demands from you an accounting for the hope that is in you; yet do it with gentleness and reverence”. I would like to dwell on three messages that we can glean from these words.

“In your hearts sanctify Christ as Lord”. The hope of Christians has a face, the face of the risen Lord. His promise to remain always with us through the gift of the Holy Spirit enables us to hope even against all hope, and to perceive the hidden goodness quietly present even when all else seems lost.

The second message is that we should be prepared to explain the hope that is in us. Significantly, the Apostle tells us to give an accounting of our hope “to anyone who demands” it. Christians are not primarily people who “talk about” God, but who resonate with the beauty of his love and a new way of experiencing everything. Theirs is a lived love that raises the question and calls for an answer: Why do you live like this? Why are you like this?

In Saint Peter’s words, we find, finally, a third message: our response to this question is to be made “with gentleness and reverence”. Christian communication – but I would also say communication in general – should be steeped in gentleness and closeness, like the talk of companions on the road. This was the method of the greatest communicator of all time, Jesus of Nazareth, who, as he walked alongside the two disciples of Emmaus, spoke with them and made their hearts burn within them as he interpreted events in the light of the Scriptures.

I dream of a communication capable of making us fellow travelers, walking alongside our brothers and sisters and encouraging them to hope in these troubled times. A communication capable of speaking to the heart, arousing not passionate reactions of defensiveness and anger, but attitudes of openness and friendship. A communication capable of focusing on beauty and hope even in the midst of apparently desperate situations, and generating commitment, empathy and concern for others. A communication that can help us in “recognizing the dignity of each human being, and [in] working together to care for our common home” (Dilexit Nos, 217).

I dream of a communication that does not peddle illusions or fears, but is able to give reasons for hope. Martin Luther King once said: “If I can help someone as I pass along, if I can cheer somebody with a word or song... then my living will not be in vain”. [3] To do this, though, we must be healed of our “diseases” of selfpromotion and self-absorption, and avoid the risk of shouting over others in order to make our voices heard. A good communicator ensures that those who listen, read or watch can be involved, can draw close, can get in touch with the best part of themselves and enter with these attitudes into the stories told. Communicating in this way helps us to become “pilgrims of hope”, which is the motto of the present Jubilee.

Hoping together

Hope is always a community project. Let us think for a moment of the grandeur of the message offered by this Year of Grace. We are all invited – all of us! – to start over again, to let God lift us up, to let him embrace us and shower us with mercy. In this regard, the personal and communal aspects are inseparably connected: we set out together, we journey alongside our many brothers and sisters, and we pass through the Holy Door together.

The Jubilee has many social implications. We can think, for example, of its message of mercy and hope for those who live in prisons, or its call for closeness and tenderness towards those who suffer and are on the margins. The Jubilee reminds us that those who are peacemakers “will be called children of God” (Mt 5:9), and in this way it inspires hope, points us to the need for an attentive, gentle and reflective communication, capable of pointing out paths of dialogue. For this reason, I encourage you to discover and make known the many stories of goodness hidden in the folds of the news, imitating those gold prospectors who tirelessly sift the sand in search of a tiny nugget. It is good to seek out such seeds of hope and make them known. It helps our world to be a little less deaf to the cry of the poor, a little less indifferent, a little less closed in on itself. May you always find those glimmers of goodness that inspire us to hope. This kind of communication can help to build communion, to make us feel less alone, to rediscover the importance of walking together.

Do not forget the heart

Dear brothers and sisters, in the face of the astonishing achievements of technology, I encourage you to care for your heart, your interior life. What does that mean? Let me offer you a few thoughts.

Be meek and never forget the faces of other people; speak to the hearts of the women and men whom you serve in carrying out your work.

Do not allow instinctive reactions to guide your communication. Always spread hope, even when it is difficult, even when it costs, even when it seems not to bear fruit.

Try to promote a communication that can heal the wounds of our humanity.

Make room for the heartfelt trust that, like a slender but resistant flower, does not succumb to the ravages of life, but blossoms and grows in the most unexpected places. It is there in the hope of those mothers who daily pray to see their children return from the trenches of a conflict, and in the hope of those fathers who emigrate at great risk in search of a better future. It is also there in the hope of those children who somehow manage to play, laugh and believe in life even amid the debris of war and in the impoverished streets of favelas.

Be witnesses and promoters of a non-aggressive communication; help to spread a culture of care, build bridges and break down the visible and invisible barriers of the present time.

Tell stories steeped in hope, be concerned about our common destiny and strive to write together the history of our future.

All this you can do, and we can do, with God's grace, which the Jubilee helps us to receive in abundance. This is my prayer, and with it, I bless each of you and your work.

FABC Pastoral Letter
To the Local Churches in Asia on the Care of Creation:
A Call to Ecological Conversion

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

Peace and blessings to you all.

We write to you, as shepherds of the Church in Asia, a land of rich cultures, ancient traditions, and deep faith. In this cradle of human and spiritual diversity, the Word of God continues to offer hope to many facing trials and challenges.

Today, we reflect on the urgency of responding to the ecological crisis in our time. On the 10th anniversary of Pope Francis' encyclical Laudato Si', a prophetic call for humanity to rediscover its relationship with creation, God, and one another, we renew our commitment to care for our common home. This message is further deepened by Pope Francis' Laudate Deum, which calls for decisive action to safeguard the earth for future generations.

As we continue to celebrate the Jubilee of Hope 2025, we are inspired by the words of St. Paul to the Romans, that "...afflictions produce endurance, and endurance proven character, and proven character hope. And hope does not disappoint..." (Rom 5:5). Christian hope calls us to engage actively in the restoration of creation and the healing of the wounds of our world. This letter is an invitation to recognize the ecological sufferings of our time—not as reasons to despair but as an invitation to endurance, action, and hope rooted in Christ.

I. The Afflictions of Our Common Home

Across Asia, we see creation groaning under the weight of human indifference, abuse, and exploitation. The consequences are already visible and scientifically attested:

- Deforestation and Biodiversity Loss: The rainforests of Indonesia, Papua New Guinea, Malaysia, Myanmar and the Philippines are being devastated, displacing indigenous communities and threatening biodiversity. These forests, vital for the survival of the planet, are under immense pressure from illegal logging, agricultural expansion, and mining.

- Rising Sea Levels and Coastal Displacement: Warming in the Pacific Ocean has intensified typhoons, flooding, and rising sea levels which are threatening the existence of entire villages in countries like the Philippines, Bangladesh, and Vietnam. Coastal communities face increasing displacement, with millions vulnerable to the impacts of climate-induced migration.
- Water Security: The melting of glaciers in the Himalayas and drying rivers in South and Central Asia are endangering the water supply for millions. These changes exacerbate conflicts over water resources, particularly in river basins shared by multiple nations.
- Air Pollution and Health Impacts: Cities across Asia, such as Beijing and Shanghai, Dhaka, Delhi, Karachi, Jakarta, Manila and Bangkok, are suffocating under hazardous levels of air pollution. This air pollution significantly contributes to respiratory diseases, especially among children and the elderly, and reduces overall quality of life.
- Stronger and More Frequent Extreme Weather Events: The warming of the Pacific Ocean is precipitating frequent and ever-intensified typhoons that have disastrous effects on the Southeast Asian countries facing the Pacific Ocean, especially the Philippines. These effects are felt all the way through South Asia (e.g., India, Pakistan, Bangladesh) and East Asia (e.g., China, Taiwan, Japan), leading to devastation, displacement and economic hardship. These powerful storms are a reminder that our inaction on climate change will only deepen the suffering of our most vulnerable brothers and sisters
- Agricultural Crises and Food Security: Droughts, floods, and unpredictable weather patterns are wreaking havoc on agriculture, reducing crop yields and threatening food security. Climate change is particularly devastating for rural populations that rely on farming for their livelihood.

These ecological tragedies affect Asia's poorest and most vulnerable communities—coastal families whose homes are washed away, farmers who can no longer grow crops, and children who suffer from polluted air and water. Political leaders, government policymakers, and decision-makers, especially the lay Catholics among them, must be reminded: the choices you make today will be judged by the generations to come. Will you leave behind a planet scarred by exploitation, or a home that reflects the beauty of God's creation?

In this time of the Jubilee, these afflictions call us to repentance, conversion, and a deeper commitment to our shared responsibility, as stewards of God's creation.

II. Signs of Hope: The Spirit at Work

Despite these challenges, we see signs of hope that the Holy Spirit is alive and active in our world:

- Community Resilience: Grassroots movements, such as the reforestation efforts and the rehabilitation of mangroves in many parts of Asia, show the resilience of local communities.

These efforts sustain biodiversity and the livelihoods of indigenous peoples, who are at the forefront of climate action.

- Ecological Ministries and Education: Across Asia, dioceses have embraced ecological ministries, from green audits of parishes to renewable energy projects, integrating creation care into parish life and Catholic education. These efforts inspire others to follow.
- Youth Engagement: Young people in our dioceses are rising as champions of integral ecology, heeding Pope Francis' call in Laudate Deum to act with urgency for the future of the planet. Their commitment offers hope for the future of creation and challenges us all to act with greater responsibility.
- Interfaith and Civil Society Collaboration: The urgency of climate justice transcends religious boundaries. It is a crucial starting point for ecumenical and interreligious dialogues, as well as partnerships with civil society and all people of good will. As Christians, we must walk alongside our neighbour-religions in this shared advocacy for the care of our common home.
- A Mission for Basic Ecclesial Communities: The transformation of Basic Ecclesial Communities into Basic Human Communities can help nurture a wider human fraternity and a shared sense of stewardship for creation, bridging faith-based efforts with global sustainability goals.
- The Church's Commitment in the Jubilee Year: As part of the Jubilee Year of Hope 2025, the Church is incorporating Care for Creation as an essential theme, urging dioceses and parishes to strengthen ecological initiatives and promote sustainable lifestyles as an expression of faith.

These signs of hope remind us that suffering is not the end. As Pope Francis emphasizes, the love of God, poured out through the Holy Spirit, inspires us to participate boldly in the mission of renewing creation (cf. Romans 5:5).

III. Our Call to Action

Hope compels us to action. As local Churches in Asia, we must rise to meet this moment with courage and determination. We must address the ecological crisis through four critical dimensions: mitigation, adaptation, legislation and finance.

a. Mitigation: Bridging the Gap

We must advocate for stronger climate commitments, such as the Paris Agreement, and work to bridge the gap between national climate targets and the scientifically necessary 1.5°C global goal. Preserving Asia's rainforests, coral reefs and rivers must be a priority. Governments, businesses, and communities must work together to ensure these ecosystems thrive, with indigenous peoples leading the way. As stated in our FABC 50 Bangkok Document which echoes Laudato Si', we must acknowledge that "the environment is on loan to each generation, and we are responsible for the way we leave it for those who follow" (BD, 104). We owe it to future generations to protect this shared heritage.

b. Adaptation and Loss and Damage: Standing with the Vulnerable

The poor are the first and hardest hit by climate change. We must amplify their voices and demand accountability from governments and industries. Funding for adaptation and loss and damage must be accelerated, particularly for vulnerable countries and communities in Asia. The FABC 50 Bangkok Document reminds us that intergenerational solidarity is not an option but a question of justice (BD, 104).

c. National and International Legislation in Defence of Ecology

We must actively lobby for the creation of environmental laws with well-defined implementing rules on solid, liquid, and gaseous-waste management, regulations on mining, and the protection of watersheds, and make it possible for communities and small nations to demand accountability from national and multinational corporations that are proven to be abusive and destructive of the environment.

d. Finance

Climate financing rooted in justice is essential. Polluters must pay their fair share, and wealthier nations must fulfil their commitments to fund climate action. In this Jubilee Year, we must also advocate for debt relief, recognizing that debt traps prevent many nations from effectively addressing the climate crisis.

Beyond debt relief, however, what is truly needed is a comprehensive review of the entire system of international loaning—one that prioritizes the well-being of debtor countries rather than perpetuating cycles of dependence and financial subjugation. Economic justice demands that financial institutions and lending nations rethink unfair structures that constrain climate action and sustainable development in the Global South.

IV. Participation in COP 30: A Call for Active Engagement

As we seek to deepen our commitment to ecological conversion and global solidarity, we also encourage all local Churches in Asia to participate actively in the upcoming COP 30, which will take place in Belem, Brazil, in 2025. This Conference offers an essential platform for nations and communities to come together and renew their commitment to climate action. We call on our dioceses to contribute by raising awareness, supporting climate advocacy, and engaging with decision-makers to push for ambitious and equitable climate solutions. Let us ensure that the voices of the most vulnerable are heard and that the call for justice resonates strongly, especially in the context of our shared Christian responsibility to care for the earth and all its inhabitants.

V. The Season of Creation: A Time of Spiritual and Ecological Renewal

As we celebrate the 10th anniversary of Laudato Si' and the Jubilee Year of Hope 2025, we also invite all local Churches in Asia to sustain the celebration of the Season of Creation, from September 1 (Feast of the Act of Creation in many Oriental Churches) to October 4 (Memorial of St. Francis of Assisi, Patron Saint of Ecology). This special time is an opportunity to deepen our spiritual and ecological renewal by:

- a. Educating our communities about ecological responsibility.
- b. Promoting simpler, more sustainable lifestyles.

- c. Nurturing a spirituality of creation that deepens our relationship with God, humanity, and the cosmos.

We must not let fear or apathy paralyze us. Instead, let us walk the Pilgrimage of Hope together, responding with faith and courage. We trust that Christ walks with us, renewing the face of the earth through our collective efforts.

Conclusion

Let this Lenten Season be an occasion for us to examine our consciences and humbly admit our sins against God's creation. Let it be an opportunity for us to respond to God's call to ecological conversion.

As we continue our journey towards becoming a missionary synodal Church, let us entrust ourselves to Mary, our Blessed Mother, who journeys with us as we care for God's creation. May her intercession inspire us to act with courage, wisdom, and compassion for the sake of our common home.

Yours faithfully in Christ,

The presence of the Archbishop Most Rev. Elias Gonsalves made the children happy and blessed. ## BISHOP'S TEST MARKS MILESTONE OF ECUMENISM AND FAITH FORMATION IN NAGPUR ARCHDIOCESE

The 70th Annual Bishop's Test, a cornerstone of faith-based education in the Archdiocese of Nagpur, was conducted on 19/01/2025 at Providence Girls' High School, Nagpur. This year's examination witnessed a historic moment, with approximately 160 students from both Catholic schools and Sunday school catechism programs, as well as students from other Christian denominations, participating. The day began with a celebration of Holy Mass offered by CLC Director Fr. Vivian Lobo at the SMMI Chapel, the site of Mother Marie Gertrude's first tomb. The Mass was offered for all participating students, particularly for their upcoming 10th board examinations.

The Bishop's Test holds a significant place in the Archdiocese, serving as a benchmark for evaluating students' faith-based knowledge. For 70 years, it has provided a valuable tool for assessing their understanding of Catholic teachings and traditions. This year's inclusion of students from other Christian denominations marks a significant step towards ecumenism, fostering interfaith dialogue and understanding among the younger generation. A separate panel, composed of members from other Christian denominations Pastor Ganesh Barve CNI, the rector of All Saints Cathedral, Pastor Sudhanshu Kadam of Methodist Church, Sister Mahi Pradhan of KCC Church were present to assess the students from their respective communities. Fr. Vikas Joseph, the Dean of Seoni-Chhindwara Deanery, Fr. Vivian Lobo the director of Christian Life Commission, Fr. Ajay Kullu, Sr. Purnima from St. Joseph Sisters, Sr. Roshmita SSPC, Mr. Sheshrao Gedam, Mrs. Veronica D'Silva, Mrs. Prashansa D'Lima, Mr. Ashirwad Satyam, Ms. Rayna Pantawane took up the panelist roles for catholic students.

The importance of the Bishop's Test extends beyond mere assessment. It provides valuable insights into the effectiveness of current catechism methodologies and pedagogies. By analyzing student performance, educators can identify areas of strength and weakness in their teaching approaches. The results can highlight which concepts are well-understood and which require further attention. This data-driven approach allows for continuous improvement in catechism instruction, ensuring that the faith and knowledge of the Church remain relevant and accessible to each new generation.

The observations from this year's test, particularly the participation of students from diverse Christian backgrounds, will provide a unique perspective. Comparing the performance of students from different denominations can shed light on varying levels of biblical literacy and theological understanding. This information can be used to develop more inclusive and comprehensive catechism programs that cater to the diverse needs of all students.

Furthermore, the test results can guide catechism teachers in adapting their methods to keep pace with the changing world and the evolving understanding of young people. By understanding how students learn best, teachers can incorporate more engaging and interactive techniques into their lessons. This might involve the use of multimedia resources, group discussions, or real-life examples to illustrate complex theological concepts. The goal is to make learning about faith a dynamic and enriching experience, ensuring that it remains a central part of young people's lives.

The Archdiocese of Nagpur acknowledges and appreciates the support and dedication of all those involved in making the 70th Bishop's Test a success. A special thanks is extended to the Principal of Providence Girls' High School, Nagpur, and the entire staff for graciously hosting this important event. Their commitment to promote faith-based education is commendable.

In a beautiful display of compassion and community spirit during the holy Lenten season, the youth of St. Martin de Porres Church, Jaripatka, came together to serve the less fortunate through a heartwarming food drive.

Guided by the Parish Priest Rev. Fr. Jesu Raj, Assistant Parish Priest Fr. Jomise Joy, and Youth President Mr. Vivian Wasnik, the young volunteers took the initiative to prepare and distribute breakfast to the poor and needy in their parish and surrounding areas.

On the morning of April 10, 2025, the youth gathered early to cook and pack nearly 100 boxes of nutritious breakfast meals. With love and dedication, they then set out on foot and by vehicle, reaching out to those often forgotten—daily wage workers, homeless individuals, and struggling families—offering them not just food, but hope and kindness.

“This drive is a reflection of our faith in action,” said Mr. Wasnik. “Lent is not just a time for fasting, but also for almsgiving and reaching out to our brothers and sisters in need.” The initiative was more than just a charitable act—it was a powerful witness of how young people can be instruments of change and service in the Church and society. The parish community appreciated the youth’s efforts and encouraged more such meaningful missions in the future.

As the Lenten season continues to call for reflection, repentance, and renewal, the food drive stands as a shining example of Christian love put into practice.
