The Teacher - Guru Brahma, Guru Vishnu, Guru Devo Maheshwara

Teachers' Day is celebrated every year on 5th September, marking the birth anniversary of Dr. Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, a great teacher, philosopher, and the second President of India. When his students wanted to celebrate his birthday, he humbly suggested, "Instead of celebrating my birthday, it would be my proud privilege if September 5 is observed as Teachers' Day." Since then, this day has become a heartfelt tribute to the dedication, wisdom, and selfless service of teachers across the country.

Teachers' Day is a day dedicated in honor of teachers and is celebrated every year around the world to acknowledge and recognize the significance of teachers in lives of students. Hence, teachers being one of the most important parts of society, molding young minds and thus the future of the country are honored and appreciated on Teachers' Day.

In Indian culture, teachers are revered as "Guru", which means one who dispels darkness and leads toward light. The ancient Sanskrit saying "Guru Brahma, Guru Vishnu, Guru Devo Maheshwara" = "The teacher (Guru) is like the Creator who gives us knowledge, like the Protector who helps us grow, and like the Transformer who removes our ignorance. The teacher is like God Himself, and we respectfully bow to our teachers." This reflects the divine status given to teachers in our tradition.

Teachers are often like second parents—guiding us, nurturing us, and shaping our lives beyond the classroom. Just as parents teach us our first words and values at home, teachers continue that journey in school, helping us grow into confident, responsible individuals.

Teachers are the foundation of every great nation. They shape not just minds, but the character and values of future citizens. By guiding students with knowledge, discipline, and inspiration, they lay the groundwork for all professions and generations to come. Many great leaders, scientists, and artists of our country have been inspired by their teachers. They are often called the "builders of the nation" because the future of any country depends on the education and values given to its young generation by teachers. Despite facing many challenges like lack of resources and large classrooms, teachers in our country remain dedicated and passionate. They work tirelessly to ensure that every child gets a chance to learn and grow.

William Arthur Ward is the author of this famous phrase: "The mediocre teacher tells. The good teacher explains. The superior teacher demonstrates. The great teacher inspires." Through their dedication, teachers promote equality, unity, and lifelong learning—fostering a society that grows with purpose and strength. Teachers are not just educators; they are mentors, motivators, and second parents. They spark curiosity, build confidence, and help us dream bigger. With patience and passion, they shape minds and hearts, one lesson at a time.

Dear Teachers, on this special day, we express our deepest gratitude for the knowledge you share, the care you show, and the difference you make every day. Your impact goes far beyond the classroom—it lasts a lifetime. As Malala Yousafzai says, "One child, one teacher, one book, one pen can change the world."

Pope Leo XIV addresses the largest crowd of his pontificate

Pope Leo XIV addressed the largest crowd of his pontificate in Rome's outskirts on August 2, telling an estimated 1 million young adults to "study, work, and love according to the example of Jesus" and to pray: "Stay with us, Lord." The pontiff was greeted on Aug. 2 by joyous crowds on the 237-acre grounds of the University of Rome Tor Vergata, 10 miles east of Rome, where teenagers and young adults stayed all night in anticipation of the closing Mass of the Jubilee of Youth.

Decades to Go before I rise!

One of the premier institutions of the Salesians in the region - Don Bosco Technical School in Shillong currently offers about 64 technical courses, some of them short courses, others of a longer duration, some of them totally free, others with an appreciable fee of 40K+ for a year. Although that is something admirable surely, the truly astonishing thing is the number of young people who make a beeline to get admission to these courses. The impossibility of absorbing all applicants prompted the management to start evening batches for a number of courses. When even that proved insufficient to accommodate all the aspiring applicants, one of their sister institutions 65 kms away, in Jowai, was asked to offer some of the courses and to take in those who could not get admission in to the Shillong institution.

In this respect, the Shillong scenario is in total contrast to the Tripura scenario. Here in Tripura, however good a program, takers are few and far between. The trend is reflected in the unemployment ratio of these States too. Tripura's unemployment rate is 16.5%, which is higher than the national average and way more than that of its North-eastern counterparts. Meghalaya is among States that have the least percentage of unemployment, with the Periodic Labour Force Survey (PLFS) saying it's a mere 2.8% which honestly feels a tad unrealistic.

Those who have worked for decades in that part of Meghalaya say the interest of the youth of Shillong for skill learning is a recent phenomenon. It seems the vast majority of the youth out there have come to realize, in the recent years, that for them to be successful in life, they need to be proficient in some income-bringing skill or other. That this interest has not yet adequately translated into entrepreneurship is a different matter; but surely, that does not take away the credit they deserve for this new-found realization.

Here in Tripura, the youth are either still fantasizing about government jobs or do not believe enough in acquiring skills for want of role models who have successfully turned these skills into means of livelihood. Or it could be connected to Tripura's relatively smaller market, lack an industrial base or geographical isolation. As for Meghalaya, it has been making significant strides in recent years in making in the Tourism sector.

The New Education Policy of the Government of India has the wherewithal to tackle this warped mindset of the youth but it hasn't been implemented yet. Skill-based education is still considered 'inferior' or 'second-class' to bookish academic pursuits.

The danger for Tripura's youth is that it could be too late when they step out of slumber into the realization that they need to fend for themselves and that easy government jobs are a thing of the past.

The Church, as an entity hugely engaged both in education and youth empowerment enterprises, can surely help to hasten this awakening process among the youth and society in general.

World's Largest Mural Honoring Pope Francis Unveiled

Argentina, August 6, 2025 — The world's largest mural dedicated to a pope was officially inaugurated on July 26, in the city of La Plata, Argentina, paying tribute to the nation's most prominent religious figure—Pope Francis. Painted by renowned muralist Martin Ron, the hyper-realistic artwork spans an impressive 50 meters in height and adorns a building at the intersection of 14th and 54th Streets in Plaza Moreno, the heart of Buenos Aires Province's capital. The mural captures a moving moment from 2013, shortly after Jorge Mario Bergoglio was elected Pope. In the image, Pope Francis is shown smiling warmly and extending his arm, a white dove flapping its wings at his fingertips, evoking the symbolism of peace and the Holy Spirit. The scene is based on a real encounter in Rome, where pilgrims had handed the Pope a dove that lingered on his hand, refusing to fly away.

Local authorities highlighted the significance of the artwork, recognizing it as not only the largest mural in the world dedicated to Pope Francis, but also a celebration of his Argentine roots and global impact.
